In 1909, Governor Donaghey signed Act 100 into law creating four public schools including what is now Arkansas State University. Classes began on October 3, 1910 in downtown Jonesboro. The first class of graduates was three boys and two girls in May 1913. In 1925, the school was named the "First District Agricultural & Mechanical College," and the mascot was the Gorilla. Through Act 222, A&M became Arkansas State College eight years later (Picture 5). During the 1950's, the Student Government Association was formed, Dr. Carl R. Reng was named President of the college (Picture 2), and the Indian Club was founded in support of athletics. July 1, 1967 marked the change of status from a college to Arkansas State University (Picture 6). The 1970's brought about change in that freshmen were no longer required to wear beanies on campus to signify their status (Picture 4). In 1984, ASU athletes Al Joyner and Earl Bell brought home medals from the Los Angeles Olympics. In the late 1980's, the Convocation Center opened hosting Spring Commencement as its first event with Governor Bill Clinton as a guest speaker. In April 1995, President Clinton dedicated the Dean B. Ellis Library (Picture 1). In 2004, the Student Union and Arkansas Biosciences Institute buildings were opened (Picture 3). On February 28, 2008, the Indian mascot was officially retired. ASU revealed its new mascot the following month as the Red Wolves. ASU is rich in tradition and history. The past has empowered us for the present, and we hope to empower those that will follow our footsteps in the future.

College life is the epitome of unpredictable, and that holds true for life at Arkansas State. Whether it be riding a bull in front of the Student Union or spending a week in South America, ASU students know how to have a good time. The Student Activities Board, Student Government Association, and the many Registered Student Organizations plan fun and exciting events on campus throughout the school year. There is something for everyone including the SAB movie series, Homecoming activities, guest speakers, intramurals, pageants, and more. A lot of the activities at ASU have become traditions such as Order of the Pack, Miss ASU, and Camp A-State. Others have been once in a lifetime moments such as the implosion of Twin Towers, the ground breakings for ASU's eight current construction projects, and the unveiling of the new Red Wolves mascot. Regardless of the activity students, faculty, and staff enjoy the unpredictable moments that being at a college brings, and as unpredictable as the moment may be, the memories last a lifetime.

[unveiling the new mascot]

On March 13, 2008 many students, faculty, staff, alumni, and fans gathered around the Student Union to be part of the historical ceremony of the unveiling of the new mascot for ASU. As anticipation flared, the spirit flag was dropped from the balcony, and the Red Wolves mascot was revealed to the fans. The campus was filled with clapping and shouts of joy as the new tradition began with this unveiling. Fans enjoyed refreshments and taking pictures of the new logos. Students that were present received a free t-shirt to commemorate the event and to begin their support of the Red Wolves. It was truly a once-in-a-lifetime moment for all ASU fans.

[community support]

The day the Red Wolves mascot was unveiled, businesses around town began to think of innovative ideas to illustrate their support for Arkansas State while incorporating their company logos. Within the next couple of weeks, buildings around town were decorated in scarlet and black. Windows displayed the Red Wolves spirit with different Arkansas State designs covering their panels. The streets of Jonesboro were decorated on either side with ASU support. Arkansas State and the Jonesboro community take great pride in their hometown team.

Construction contract date was Feb. 21, 1966 and it took approximately six months to build Twin Towers at a cost of $2,964,59[illegible]00

In just a matter of moments, the Seminole Twin Towers Residence Hall came tumbling to the ground on Sunday, May 25th. Hundreds of spectators arrived in the early morning hours to claim their viewing spot for the implosion, but for those that could not make it to the site, various media were on the scene to capture the historic moment. Boundaries were established to keep all spectators out of harms way for the seven o'clock a.m. blast. After approximately eight weeks of preparing for the implosion, Chandler Demolition from Memphis, TN began the countdown at five o'clock in the morning. In approximately fifteen seconds, nine floors of concrete and other materials fell to the ground. Twin Towers operated from 1967 - 2006, and was home to approximately 23,600 students. Ben Stevens, a resident of the sixth floor from Fall 2005 - Spring 2006 said, "Watching the implosion was bittersweet because I had so many wonderful memories and met several of my good friends while living in Twin Towers, but the community showers needed to go." After closing the doors to students in 2006, the building served as a training site for police and fire fighters until 2007. The space will serve as green space or the possible location of an academic building.

Right: Both state and local media were on hand to document the implosion of the 39 year old male residence hall. Members of the media were given passes and allowed on the "media deck" to capture pictures and video of the event.

"I love Arkansas State because the people I have met in my classes have become wonderful friends! Our PE department is like one big family!"

I used approximately 200 pounds of nitroglycerine-based explosives which were placed in 1,100 borehole locations on four levels of the building.

[spring break '08]

Spring is a wonderful time of year! Birds are singing and flowers are blooming. The weather is getting warmer and stressed ASU students are headed to the beach, or other exciting hot spots to unwind!

[Spring break: noun. ]
1. A one week period of time set in an exotic and exciting destination, when social constraints and inhibitions disappear. 2. A time to escape from studies and fears and indulge in the luxury of being with great company and exciting new adventures.-According to Webster's Dictionary.

Whether soaking up the sun while enjoying the luxury of a cruise, or spending a week in Ireland or Las Vegas, students of Arkansas State sure know how to pick some great destinations!

[new student orientations]

New Student Orientation can be a scary experience at first glance-- sitting in a room full of strangers and having to make your first semester schedule without your parents help. However, ASU knows how to do New Student Orientation right! At New Student Orientation, the incoming freshmen played games, learned about getting involved on campus, and maybe even made a friend or two. There were browsing sessions to get familiar with organizations on campus, as well as, interest sessions to get even more information about student leadership, Greek life, religious organizations, and living on campus. Sarah Jayne Peoples from West Helena, AR said, "A perfect world where everything is handled from registering for classes, renting your mailbox, learning how to get involved, and beginning lasting friendships. At Arkansas State University this perfect world begins at Orientation." The New Student Orientation's of 2008 went above and beyond to make students feel welcome and at home at ASU.

Getting A Sneak Peek

[camp a-state]

Every summer, Arkansas State University Orientation Leaders and Staff host an extended Orientation program called Camp A-State. Campers spend two nights and three days getting a peek of what college life is really like. "It was an awesome experience!" said Bree Walls. Bree continued, "I got to meet so many new people, and when I came to campus in the fall I saw so many faces that I actually recognized! I got to know the campus very well, and I didn't feel lost when I got here!" Whether it was going on a scavenger hunt around campus, making a timeline about themselves or hanging out at the Collegiate Park pool, the Orientation Leaders and campers were sure to have a good time. Freshman Jacob Fowler said, "Camp A-State was tons of fun and a great way to make connections on campus." Students learned about the history of Arkansas State University as well as how to get involved on campus, and all of the leadership opportunities that are available. A luau was held on the last night at the Collegiate Park Clubhouse and pool where Orientation Leaders and campers enjoyed cake, swam, played volleyball, and danced the night away.

Best Week Ever!

[welcome week]

The Student Activities Board had an exciting week of activities to welcome students to Arkansas State University. Events ranged from a Community and Organization Fair to a comedian. Saturday Operation Move-In kicked off Welcome Week, where several community members and ASU organizations assisted students and parents by moving in truck loads of personal items into the residence halls. Freshmen Connection, held Sunday afternoon, provided the perfect opportunity for Orientation Leaders to show new students where their classes would be located on Monday. The Luau, hosted by Residence Life took place on Sunday night in the Center Court of the Student Union. Comedian, Arvin Mitchell, entertained students Monday night in the Auditorium. Mitchell has entertained several audiences since his debut on BET's "Coming to the Stage" in 2003. SAB sponsored Game Night in front of the Student Union on Tuesday night. The Community and Organization Fair occurred Wednesday afternoon, providing students with information and free gifts from a variety of ASU departments and organizations, and businesses from the Jonesboro Community.

Pizza, bicycles, snowcones, friends, and fun were all part of the 2008 Community Fair. Wednesday, August 27th marked the day of the annual Community Fair sponsored by the Student Activities Board and the Leadership Center. Students came out of the woodworks to come see what Arkansas State and Jonesboro had to offer. Whether it was talking to the National Guard or finding out which Greek Organization is right for you this fair had a plethera of options for anyone of any sort. A record number of vendors, approximately 115, were on hand to interact with students, faculty, and staff.

Home Away from Home

[residence life]

What's the best thing about living on campus? Most will say that the freedom you get from parents and siblings takes the cake. You do not have to get up at the crack of dawn to fight traffic and trains to get to class on time, either. You get a place of your own without a ton of bills or a spacious area to clean. You get prime access to campus events like the Residence Life Luau. Of course, living on campus could mean that you also have to endure messy roommates, or three a.m. fire alarms. To most, though, it's a fair trade-off: "I'm just really glad to be out of my parent's house," says Daniel Holt. "And I have some pretty cool roommates, too."

[order of the pack]

Threats of inclement weather from Hurricane Gustav could not stop the 12th Annual Order of the Pack from happening. This annual event was moved to the ASU Convocation Center due to the rain. However, the rain did not put a damper on anyone's spirits and a record number of people, approximately 3,000, were in attendance! Prior to the start of the event all guests were greeted with the sound of the Red Wolves howl. In addition to the many students on hand for the event several members of various athletic teams took their place in the stands. The A-Team, cheerleaders, and band helped pump up an already rowdy crowd with school chants, cheers, and the fight song. The attendees at this year's event were greeted by ASU-J Chancellor Dr. Robert Potts, Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs Dr. Rick Stripling, Executive Director of Alumni Mrs. Beth Smith, Athletic Director Dr. Dean Lee, Men's Head Football Coach Mr. Steve Roberts, and Men's Head Basketball Coach Mr. John Brady. Students also heard from various student leaders speak about the importance of the student bodies participation in athletic events as well as learned the oral history of Arkansas State University. Each student that attended the event received a commemorative Red Wolves t-shirt.

Homecoming is one of the most fun, yet busiest times of the year for many students. This year's theme, "Red Wolves: Its a Reality," fit both our fun and busy lifestyles. There were many events that were based on Reality TV shows and allowed students to get involved, such as: Singled Out, Fear Factor, the Amazing AState Race, and more. At the end of the week, the President's Cup was awarded to the team with the most points from the events throughout the week. The ladies of Alpha Gamma Delta took home this award, as well as, first place in several events.

[homecoming court]

It is an honor to be nominated for Homecoming Court. Nominations for Homecoming Court began with campus organizations selecting one male student and one female student to be nominated for this years Court. After the nominations were completed, the student body then voted the candidates they thought should be selected for the Homecoming Court. This years court was made up of a gro of amazing students!

[homecoming game]

The Homecoming activities throughout the week led up to the weeks most anticipated event, the Homecoming game. This is when many of ASU's alumni have the chance to come back to the place they called home during their college years and celebrate old traditions. But, this years Homecoming game was more than that. It was a Homecoming game that embraced both old traditions and new beginnings. The team ran out onto the field to face Middle Tennessee in their first Homecoming as the Red Wolves. The team had a lot to live up to, not only were there lots of students and alumni in the crowd, but so were the members of the 1958 ASU football team. The Red Wolves made everyone proud with a 31-14 victory over Middle Tennessee.

[miss ASU]

Miss ASU is a philanthropic event hosted by the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity to fund the research of the American Cancer Society. Miss Morgan Bookout was crowned Miss ASU and qualified for the Miss Arkansas Pageant. First place also receives a $1000 scholarship from Pi Kappa Alpha, $400 traveling expenses for the Miss Arkansas Pageant held in Hot Springs, and recognition and appearances throughout the community. The pageant is judged by official Miss America judges, and is based on scores of: Talent, Onstage Question, Formal Wear, Swim Wear, and Interview. Member of Pi Kappa Alpha and director of the event, Dillon Burks, said, "Miss ASU is big. I didn't know if I could handle it at first. You've got the girls to work with, arranging contracts, coordinating events, lining up judges, advertising, advertising, and more advertising, programs, being on call 24/7 for my competitors, and a thousand other things. But after it's all over with, you realize it's not so hard on the broader scale. I put in a few months worth of work. My fraternity gets out funding the research in search of a cure for cancer, and helping those who suffer from it lead their lives a little easier. The whole experience, in retrospect, is very humbling. I'm honored to be able to direct the pageant, and the truth is, I'll miss it when I graduate."

[multicultural events]

ASU has become more culturally diverse each year, and the office of Multicultural Affairs works to educate students about the importance of various cultures. Every year, the office teams up with other organizations to plan several events to get the students at Arkansas State University involved and educated about cultures other than their own. Events like Fall Explosion, Martin Luther King, Jr. Week, Black History Month, Hispanic Heritage Week, and the Multicultural Food Festival are just a few examples of what Multicultural Affairs is doing on campus.

[non-traditional student events]

Non-Traditional students (and their children) enjoy a number of campus-sponsored activities and programs throughout the year. A-State Welcome was the first program of the semester for Non-Traditional students. This event provided students with relative information that would aid them in achieving their academic goals. At this event, several Academic Affairs and Student Affairs units provided students with vital information for successful campus navigation, support, and most importantly with tips for degree completion. The Success Series, set up specifically for these students, re-enforces the students that they can succeed with the seminar "You Can Do it." Fall Festival and Springfest, hosted by various campus organizations, allow an escape from the normal routine, giving students and children a chance to have fun and learn about some interesting topics while getting to spend quality time together.

[international student programs]

Arkansas State students, faculty, and staff may have noticed a change when they began the 2008 Fall semester. The international student population grew 110 percent. An initiative brought forth by Chancellor Robert Potts focused on the recruitment of international students to the University. Many activities were held to welcome students from various countries such as Nepal, China, and Germany. The Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and Research, Dr. G. Daniel Howard spoke with several faculty and staff members during the summer to inform everyone of the many benefits increasing the international student population would bring to our campus.

Q: *What made you decide to come to ASU?

[registered student organization events]

No matter where you turn on the campus of Arkansas State University, you will see students actively participating in some sort of Registered Student Organization. With approximately 115 organizations to choose from on campus, there is always something to do. With such a diverse group of organizations everyone can find something to relate to, but if a student cannot find something in one of the already registered organizations they can simply start a new organization!

College is a time for discovering who you really are and who you want to be in the future. Student organizations are a great way to be involved, make friends, and learn in ways that a classroom just can't teach you.

ASU is home to more than 150 student organizations. These organizations range in focus from academics and honor societies to religious and "just for fun" groups. There is truly a place for anyone and everyone, and new organizations are formed each year. These organizations also sponsor events throughout the year to get students involved on campus. The variety of the events spans everything from live performances by rock-and-roll bands to breast cancer awareness week.

The Student Government Association acts as the voice between students and the university, and the Student Activities Board plan major events and bring opportunities to the campus throughout the year such as guest speakers and leadership programs.

[student activities board events]

The Student Activities Board plans, organizes and facilitates a number of activities. Each activity is a piece of work from the master creators of the SAB board of directors. All ASU students have the opportunity to attend and participate in every activity put on by SAB. Each activity is a great opportunity for students to interact with staff and peers while having fun. The activities are opportunities for learning, socializing, and leadership roles within the campus. Activities range from a variety of things such as breast cancer awareness month activities to Welcome Week, 99 things you should know before sleeping with him seminar to same sex marriage debate, and Mardi Gras Activities to Martin Luther King, Jr. Activities. The Student Activities Board is there for the students and the activities they plan help with the overall college experience that all students want to possess.

New Student Orientation is a HUGE part of beginning a new school year at many colleges. The Orientation Leaders play a big role in helping students transition from high school to college life. The Orientation Leader's of 2008 really pushed the envelope and themselves to make it the best summer it could be! This group of Orientation Leader's set a record for the most ads in the Orientation Guide and made memories to last a lifetime. From moving apartments several times to secret pal gifts, this group of Orientation Leader's had a special bond and will forever remember the summer of 2008. "Motivating a group of twenty-two students who have to do everything from move tables to speak to several different people is often a challenge. This group of Orientation Leader's did a fantastic job welcoming new students, parents, and guests to the University and they truly showed their Red Wolves spirit. It was a joy to watch each of them grown and develop as an individual!" said Natalie Eskew, Coordinator of Student Services.

Traveling To A Different World

[global student leaders]

While Jonesboro shivered from the cold December winds of winter, six lucky ASTATE students had the experience of a lifetime enjoying summertime in South America. Since 2000, the Global Student Leader program has taken our most outstanding student leaders to visit over 40 countries on all six inhabited continents. This years excursion took the GSL group to the countries of Chile and Argentina.

First the group went to Chile and visited the capital city of Santiago and the coastal city of Valpariso. Next they ventured to Argentina staying in the capital city of Buenos Aires. The group especially enjoyed touring the sites of the legendary first lady Eva Peron. The trip ended with an ecotour high in the Andes mountains at the Cascada de las Animas.

The GSL group consisted of Caitlin Farris from Jonesboro, Justin McClure and Broadway Linker of Little Rock, Lindsay Weaver of Marion, E.J. Carey of White Hall, and Weston Little of Pocahontas. Randall Tate, Dean of Student Development and Leadership served as advisor.

Wearing letters means so much more than parties and t-shirts. Being Greek means that you're part of something so much bigger than yourself. Greek organizations offer brother and sisterhood like none other. They also provide a means for helping others through philanthropies and friendships, while celebrating traditions from years past.

ASU Greek Life is made up of three councils: National Panhellenic Council, National Pan-Hellenic Council, Inc., and Interfraternity Council. NPC consists of four women's sororities and fraternities. NPHC is made up of six historically African-American fraternities and sororities. IFC governs seven men's fraternities on campus. There are a total of seventeen Greek organizations at ASU, and each one offers something special. The ASU Greek community has a long-standing reputation of campus involvement, community service, leadership, and scholarship. And, perhaps the most important part of Greek life is the lifelong memories, support, and friendships that come with brother or sisterhood.

SHA[RED]

Friendships ignite, memories are shared, and legacies are made during Sorority and Fraternity Recruitment. Students all across campus anxiously await the arrival of these two weeks. Fraternity and Sorority Recruitment consists of meetings for potential new members, recruitment workshops for active members, a week of energetic events to recruit new members, and the excitement of bid signing. This fall, 220 women and 140 men participated in Recruitment activities. In addition, several fraternity new members chose to accept open bids instead of participating in traditional recruitment activities. Sorority and fraternity recruitment celebrates and strengthens the common bond of sisterhood and brotherhood among Greek members.

Greek 101 is a welcoming experience for new members of Greek organizations at ASU. It is a fun-filled night of learning about Greek life and what all it entails. New members attended sessions about values, image, involvement, social networking, risk management, hazing, and the purpose of the Greek councils. They also participated in a small group session to meet people from other organizations different from their own. The facilitators of Greek 101 represented many different organizations and helped the new members learn a lot about Greek life.

Each chapter at Arkansas State University has a foundation or charity that they support through philanthropy. All organizations take pride in their philanthropy and hold events throughout the year to raise as much money as possible. As well as holding their own events, there is tremendous participation from sororities and fraternities in each other's philanthropic events. The opportunities to give back to the community are endless.

GLAMOU[RED]

The Greek community at Arkansas State University continues to work hard all year long going to chapter meetings, serving on committees, preforming community service, hosting philanthropic events, participating in campus activities, attending various University functions, and excelling academically year after year. All of the hard work does pay off. Throughout both fall and spring semesters, chapters on campus hold formals and registered parties. Formals are held as close as Jonesboro or Paragould, and as far away as New Orleans, LA or St. Louis, MO. Formals may last just one night or may be a whole weekend trip. Registered parties take many different themes such as Lambda Chi Alpha's Hellraiser, Pi Kappa Alpha's Luau, Omega Psi Phi's Pool Party, and Alpha Tau Omega's Paradise Island. Whether it is Alpha Omicron Pi's Roseball, or Kappa Alpha's Beach Bash, or Alpha Phi Alpha's Foam Party, the Greeks are sure to have a good time.

Miss Greek Goddess

ADMI[RED]

Miss Greek Goddess is a philanthropic event hosted by then Men of Lambda Chi Alpha with all proceeds benefiting St. Jude Children's Hospital. All NPC sororities and IFC fraternities sponsored new members of Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi, Chi Omega, and Delta Zeta in the event. The list of events for the night included a costume competition, talent/skit competition, new member introduction, and evening gown competition. Fourteen new members competed in the events. Kohl McCone, sponsored by the women of Chi Omega, was named 2008 Miss Greek Goddess. Winner of the Talent/Skit competition, Chanler Hansen, new member of Alpha Gamma Delta, said, "being in Miss Greek Goddess has been by far the best freshman year experience I have yet to have. Winning Talent was awesome, but winning Cream of the Crop for the third year and representing my Alpha Gamma Delta sisters was the best!" All of the girls were very proud to represent their organizations. New Member of Delta Zeta, Callie Ann Wagner, said, "Miss Greek Goddess was so much fun! It feels amazing to walk up on stage in front of everyone and know you're representing your sisters!"

Mr. Greek Adonis

Mr. Greek Adonis is an annual philanthropic event hosted by the National Panhellenic Conference. Greek organizations sponsored new members of fraternities in the competition. The competition included three portions: formal wear with an interview question, talent/skit, and toga. Fraternities also got the chance to introduce their new members and competed for the title of "Best Men on Campus." Lambda Chi Alpha was awarded the title for the second year in a row. First place was awarded to Jordan Phillips of Lambda Chi Alpha, sponsored by the women of Alpha Omicron Pi; second place was awarded to Lyndon Ramirez of Lambda Chi Alpha, sponsored by the women of Chi Omega; Third place was awarded to Zack Taylor of Sigma Chi, sponsored by the women of Alpha Omicron Pi. This year proceeds totaling approximately $3,500 was donated to the NEA Women's Crisis Center.

The ladies of Alpha Omicron Pi celebrated winning first place in the 2008 Homecoming Step Show. Lindsey Hawkins said, "You never know how much you love each other until you try to teach 40 girls a step routine! There was laughter, tears, a few people quit, and others made it through something that was probably one of the hardest things they had ever done. But there is no feeling greater than the moment they called us for first place and the AOIIs stormed the floor from every direction. In that moment, all the tough times and disagreements were forgotten and all that mattered was that we won!" Hawkins was co-coordinator of the winning routine.

College is about so much more than just declaring a major. It is declaring who you are and who you want to be in the future, declaring where you want to go and what you want to do. It is about declaring these things to yourself and to the world. ASU offers many opportunities for students to study in areas of interest to them and to experience their fields of study outside the classroom.

ASU is home to ten colleges and hundreds of degree programs at the associate's, bachelor's, master's, specialist, and doctoral levels. Classes are also offered through the Honors College and the department of Military Science. ASU is also more than just the Jonesboro campus. There are other ASU campuses in Beebe, Mountain Home, Searcy, Marked Tree, Heber Springs, and Newport. Other Arkansas community colleges have agreements to offer ASU classes, as well.

So, no matter the place or the interest, Arkansas State University can help everyone declare who they want to be.

College of [Agriculture]

One hundred years ago ASU was founded with strong ties to Agriculture. The legacy of agricultural studies has far exceeded what anyone probably could have ever dreamed in 1909. The Agricultural & Mechanical Training School (A&M) would eventually be named Arkansas State University and currently offers a variety of degree options. The College of Agriculture is home to the studies of Agricultural Business, Agricultural Education, Food Science, Plant Science/Environmental Horticulture, Animal Science/Pre-Veterinary Medicine, Food Technology, Technical & Vocational Education, and General Agriculture Science. The College also incorporates several minors and graduate programs in agriculture fields. The College is focused on hands-on learning experiences that happen at ASU's Farm and Equine Center. Today, the farm runs 296 acres as a teaching and working farm. The farm has grown over the years to include a beef barn, chicken house, dairy barn feed mill, a farrowing house, and several other structures. Two times a year the College of Agriculture hosts the Bill and Alice Nix Petting Zoo which is open to the community. In addition to the Petting Zoo, the College is also host to a Regional Farmer's Market on the corner of Aggie Road and Stadium Blvd. Besides the multitude of hands-on experience available in the classroom there are a variety of organizations students in the College of Agriculture can become involved with while completing their degrees. Information obtained from the ASU Website.

"A lot of the classes are more hands-on and that teaches you more than you could ever learn in a classroom."

College of [Business]

The ASU College of Business is one of only 25% of schools in the nation accredited by the prestigious Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. The College of Business is the third largest college at ASU and offers undergraduate and graduate degrees. The College of Business includes the following departments: Accounting and Law, Computer Information & Technology, Economics and Finance, and Marketing & Management. The College offers students many opportunities to study abroad and experience the business world in a variety of countries. Faculty members within the College provide students with a strong educational experience in order to ensure that all graduates are equipped with the necessary tools to become thoughtful leaders and insightful decision makers. Ground was broken for the new ASU Delta Economic Development Center in a ceremony held earlier in the year. The Center was created from a $1,000,000 grant received from the Economic Development of Arkansas Fund Commission. The Center will coordinate the economic development outreach services of the University and provide a coordinated and comprehensive approach to serving the businesses, governments and citizens of the Arkansas Delta. Information obtained from the ASU website.

Q: What was it like to travel with the College of Business to China?

"As far as my trip to China I can easily say that my favorite part was when we visited Victoria Peak in Hong Kong because it overlooked the business district and Victoria Harbour. Just being there and looking down at some of the businesses that I knew and their buildings such as the Bank of China Tower, the AIG tower, the Bank of America Building, and the Citibank Tower was overwhelming and felt kind of unreal because I dream of working for a large international company or hopefully even own one myself."

College of [Communications]

The College of Communications offers both undergraduate and graduate degrees. The College is comprised of the following departments: Journalism, Radio-Television, and Speech Communications. Its faculty along with hands on experiences working with KASU, The Herald, and ASU-TV provide a unique educational for the communications student. No other University in the state offers students the tools and techniques necessary to succeed in all forms of mass communications. The field of communications is one of the fastest growing and exciting industries. Communications students are also involved in a variety of professional organizations outside of the classroom such as: Advertising Federation, Association for Women in Communications, Gamma Epsilon Tau, National Broadcasting Society, National Press Photographers Association, Public Relations Student Society of America, Society of Professional Journalists, and the Undergraduate Student Research Association.

Information was obtained from the ASU website.

Q: What have you liked most about the College of Communications?

"I have loved learning from teachers with real world experience in the subjects that they teach. The professors have a passion not only for the classes they instruct, but also for the students they teach. Their knowledge, advice, and guidence have truly prepared me to face whatever the future holds."

Educational Leadership, Curriculum, and Special Education; Health, Physical Science Education, and Sports Sciences; Psychology and Counseling; and Teacher Education are the four departments which comprise the College of Education. The college offers degrees at the Doctorate, Master's, Specialist, and Bachelor's of Science level. Dr. John A. Beineke is the Dean of the College. In addition to providing excellent educational opportunities in the classroom, there are a number of organizations student's can choose to participate in such as: Association for Childhood Education International, ASU Rehabilitation Counselor's Association, Sport Management Club, Phi Epsilon Kappa, Psi Chi, Arkansas Education Association, Psychology Club, and the College Student Personnel Services Club. The Health, Physical Education, and Sport Science (HPESS) building houses the Office of Intramurals. Intramurals consist of all types of sports in both the Spring and Fall semesters . Many students from the College of Education are employed as student referees for a number of the Intramural Sports games. The HPESS also offers a fitness center, swimming pool, racquetball courts, a weight room and other equipment to students and faculty of ASU. Also, new hardwood basketball courts were installed in 2008, to provide an additional practice court for the ASU men and women's basketball teams. Information obtained from the ASU website.

Q: *What do you like most about the College of Education?

"What I like most about the College of Education is that we are a diverse group of individuals dedicated to working in public schools and with classroom teachers for the betterment of students. I enjoy working with a common purpose to imporve the quality of instruction for preschool through high school aged students. The College of Education has a long history at ASU of preparing preservice teachers who go into the profession and make a difference in the lives of children."

College of [Engineering]

The College of Engineering is recognized regionally and nationally for the dedication to academic excellence and providing a unique educational experience. Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, and Technology are a few of the areas of studies available through this College. In addition to opportunities inside the classroom, students also have the chance to become involved in many different engineering clubs and organizations such as: the America Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineering, Institute of Electronically and Electronics Engineers, National Society of Black Engineering, and the Society of Mechanical Engineers.The College of Engineering continues to change to meet the demanding challenges of education in the 21st century and is one of few programs that offer a true multidisciplinary educational approach in order to better prepare ASU graduates for today's competitive work environment. Information obtained from the ASU website.

Q: *What do you enjoy most about being an Electrical Engineering major?

"What I enjoy most about being an Electrical Engineering major, is that even if I have no idea what I want to do when I graduated, with my degree I can almost go into any technological field of my choice. It allows me to use my own creativity to come up with new innovative ideas to drastically change the lives of people for the better."

The College of Fine Arts houses three departments: Art, Music, and Theater. The Department of Art offers degrees in the areas of studio art, graphic design, art history, and art education. The Department of Art is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Art and Design (NASAD). This year, some exhibitions sponsored by the department were from artists such as faculty members Gayle Pendergrass and Jay Salvest, graduate student Lyle Stephens, and Dan Addington, a Chicago artist and gallery owner. The Department of Music offers several degrees such as Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Music Performance, and Bachelor of Music Education. This Department is home to the ASU Marching Band which is now named The Sound of the Natural State. The marching band can be seen at football games, basketball games, pep rallies, and other events on campus. The Department also presents concerts from different ensembles throughout the year. The Department of Theater offers a Bachelor of Fine Arts Theater degree with an emphasis in acting, design technology, musical theater, or directing. By the end of Spring 2009, the Department of Theater will have presented four major productions: Dancing at Lughnasa, The Rimers of Eldritch, Talk Radio, and Lovers and Executioners. The College of Fine Arts also offers a study abroad program to Florence, Italy which is now its in 9th consecutive year. Information obtained from the ASU website.

College of [Humanities & Social Sciences]

The College of Humanities and Social Sciences consists of six various departments including: Criminology, Sociology, Geography, English and Philosophy, Heritage Studies, History, Languages, and Political Science. Each department offers degrees at the undergraduate, graduate, and doctoral levels. The college is also the founder of the Arkansas Review, Explorations in Renaissance Studies, and the Tributary publications. Numerous events are hosted by the Humanities and Social Sciences College including the Delta Blues Symposium, Constitution Day, Freshmen Mixer, ASU Moot Court, and the Brown Bag Lecture Series. The CSI Forensic Science Summer Camp, for high school students, is coordinated annually by the college. The new Liberal Arts Building groundbreaking took place September 20th, 2008 and will provide additional state-of-the-art classrooms, computer labs, faculty offices, departmental suites, and conference rooms. Five of the six departments will be housed in the new Liberal Arts Building. Dr. Gloria J. Gibson, Dean of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, said, "Just as this new structure will stand as a powerful physical landmark--the intellectual heart of the University--a liberal arts education continues to provide a durable foundation for life-long learning. The Humanities and Social Sciences are central to what it means to be educated, because the disciplines celebrate and nurture human creativity and freedom." Information obtained from the Arkansas State University website.

Q: *Why did you come to ASU's College of Humanities and Social Sciences?

"I came to ASU to replace a teacher who was on leave that year and to gain full-time teaching experience. I liked the students, other faculty, and university so much that I ended up staying and making Jonesboro my home. I enjoy teaching first and second generation college students and being a part of a university that emphasizes a blend of teaching, research, and service."

College of [Science & Mathematics]

The Colleges of Sciences and Mathematics contains five different departments including Biological Sciences, Chemistry and Physics, Mathematics and Statistics, Forensic Sciences, and Computer Sciences. Each department offers both undergraduate as well as graduate degrees. The Biological Sciences, Chemistry, and Physics departments offer doctoral programs. The college offers numerous research opportunities and leadership through club involvement; for example, internships at the Arkansas Biosciences Institute (ABI) or clubs such as the Wildlife Club, Medical Arts Club, and Northeast Arkansas Women in Science. The College of Sciences and Mathematics is equipped with an extremely talented staff, including Dr. Fabricio Medina-Bolívar, whose research is at the interface of Plant Metabolic Engineering/ABI, was recently invited to speak on "Induced Biosynthesis and Biological Activity of Natural Resveratrol Analogues from Hairy Root Cultures" at the 6th Annual Congress of International Drug Discovery Science and Technology (IDDST) in Beijing, China.

The Arkansas Biosciences Institute encompasses collaborative research efforts of five institutions through agricultural and medical research in order to improve the health of Arkansans. The mission of the ABI is to improve the health of Arkansans through new and expanded agricultural and medical research initiatives. Information obtained through Arkansas State University website.

Q: What class do you enjoy teaching the most?

"I like to teach both Biological Science for non-majors and Biology of the Cell for biology majors. There is some overlap in the information covered in the two classes, and students in both classes rarely have much background in the topics covered. I enjoy teaching both of these classes because I believe students who are interested in learning have many "Wow" moments, times when they say, "Wow, I didn't know that." I enjoy seeing the light go on in students' eyes. I think that it is important for all students to have at least a general understanding of some of the fundamental processes involved with life, such as photosynthesis, respiration, and protein synthesis, and an appreciation for the relatedness of all living things. I believe that Biology of the Cell is the most important foundation course for our pre-professional students. Students who will commit to learning the material in Biology of the Cell will find that many higher level courses, such as courses in genetics, biochemistry, and microbiology, are much easier. I enjoy watching students that I have taught in Biology of the Cell succeed in later course work and gain admission to post-graduate professional schools."

University [College]

The University College at Arkansas State University is a unique college that offers assistance to students in a variety of ways. University College provides students with tutoring, academic advising, a first year experience course, and many other programs, all in which help students adapt to college life. University College also offers degree programs such as: a two-year Associate Degree in General Studies or a four-year Bachelor of Science degree in Interdisciplinary Studies. Students are also able to develop their own degree programs by working closely with the Dean of the University College. Information obtained from the Arkansas State University College website.

On Wednesday, January 14, 2009, at 10:00 am university officials and alumni from Arkansas State University, Arkansas Tech University, Southern Arkansas University, and the University of Arkansas at Monticello joined Governor Mike Beebe and other government officials for a ceremonial re-signing of Act 100 in the Capitol Rotunda in Little Rock, Arkansas. Act 100 of 1909 created four state universities which have all become comprehensive universities with missions in teaching, research, and service. Members from the ASU Theater department, under the direction of Bob Simpson, dressed in period costume portrayed members of the 1909 37th General Assembly. The group gave a unique dramatized presentation to a standing room only crowd on hand for the event. Dr. Potts remarked on the progress ASU has made over the last several years.

Athletic teams often serve as the "face" of many universities around the world. Arkansas State University changed its face this year and became the Red Wolves. The new mascot was a very exciting change for student-athletes and fans alike. With the new name also came new traditions and even a new spirit character. ASU's new spirit character, "Howl" was introduced at the first football game of the 2008 season and has been present at many functions since then including other sporting events, ASU Preview Days for future students, and the annual Northeast Arkansas Christmas Parade. Howl was even found hanging out in the Student Union to promote events.
ASU offers nine sports including men and women's basketball, women's bowling, football, baseball, men and women's track & field, women's soccer, women's tennis, women's volleyball, and men and women's golf. These sports offer a great deal of support to over 300 student-athletes. ASU also offers an array of intramural sports including kickball, flag football, basketball, dodgeball, volleyball, and many more.

Excitement was howling within the halls of Athletics during the 2008-2009 season. With the introduction of new coaching staffs, the unveiling of the Red Wolves mascot, and the creation of Howl, ASU fans were set for fantastic athletic events . Winning seasons and energetic fans put the finishing touch on this memorable year. Howl Yes!

The Hunt is On [football]

Football is a long standing tradition at almost every university in the country. Football season is, at most schools, as exciting as Christmas is to most young children. Tailgating, cheerleaders, music, and the game make Fall so much more than back-to-school. Red Wolves football creates an atmosphere like none other. ASU Stadium brings people together from all walks of life to cheer on the hometown school.

The Red Wolves started the season off right with an impressive win over Big-12 team, Texas A&M. They continued their success with a huge 83-10 win in the home opener against Texas Southern, and a 31-14 win over Middle Tennessee at Homecoming. The team has really showed the students and community that no matter the name, ASU is still playing the same game.

Kicking It Into High Gear

The Red Wolves Soccer team made promising improvement this year and the games were fun to watch for everyone. The Red Wolves started off with an awesome three straight wins. When it was all said and done, the Red Wolves ended up with a four-win season which is their best since the'05-'06 season. There were promising signs for the team this year. The Red Wolves broke the ASU scoring record withe eighty-four goals scored this season. Also, the ASU soccer program's attendance has been rising each year. The '07-'08 season averaged 181 people a game, but this year attendance bumped up to an average of 250 people a game. Another good sign is the top four scorers were underclassmen and will return to play next season. The Red Wolves hope to continue to improve and have another successful season next year.

"Even though our numbers may not show much change, this season took a drastic turn in the right direction. We competed at a much higher level and played with alot more heart than in the past. I think next year will only be better, but it takes transition years like this one to get you playing at your highest potential, so we're really excited about our future."

-Anna Kaloghirou

"I love Arkansas State because it is a place where I have met new friends, while still keeping in contact with friends from high school. ASU has given me the opportunity to get involved with so many different organizations and I truly feel at home here!"

[tennis]

The Arkansas State Women's Tennis team is comprised of eight female athletes. Team members include Elne Barnard, Menna Kamal, Rone van Wyk, Tina Ojdanic, Emily Laing, Paula Chelminska, Leydi Zora, and Jenny Herring. These women are coached by Marcia Williams, head coach for 29 years at ASU, and Marina Englebrecht, assistant coach for the first year. The ASU tennis team had a winning season with the record of 11-7. New academic buildings are not the only thing being constructed on the campus of Arkansas State University. A proposed facility would include eight courts and would be located off Caraway Road just behind the Track and Field Complex. In addition to serving as a new home for the Red Wolves tennis team, the building would be utilized by Arkansas State's Health, Physical Education and Sports Sciences Department for classes. Information from Sports Information.

Red Wolves On the Run

The Arkansas State men and women's track & field and cross country teams gave their opponents a run for their money! Both teams combined for a total of 18 new personal records set at the 20th annual Kickoff Klassic that begins each indoor season at the ASU Convocation Center. Head coach Lon Badeaux and assistant coaches Jason Brooks and Matt Kraft were very pleased to see their teams doing so well. All three coaches are in their second seasons at ASU. Brooks, an ASU alumnus and one of the top sprinters in ASU history, serves as the sprints coach, while Kraft specializes in weight throws. ASU's track program has produced many great athletes including Olympians Earl Bell, Al Joyner, and Jeff Hartwig.

[volleyball]

In his thirteenth year as head coach of the Arkansas State volleyball team, Coach Craig Cummings worked hard to make this season the best yet at ASU. The Red Wolves managed an impressive 21 wins this season, but lost in the first round of the SunBelt Tournament to second seeded Middle Tennessee. All in all, it was a winnning season for the Red Wolves who are already looking ahead to a productive next season. With four juniors, four sophomores, and six freshmen returning, Coach Cummings has the makings for even more success with the ASU volleyball team.

Picture this... You're sitting in your cap and gown ready to receive your diploma, and you're the first class to ever graduate from your school in May 1913. Or maybe, you're welcoming home Al Joyner and Earl Bell with their Olympic medals in 1984. Or even, listening to former President Bill Clinton dedicate the library in the name of Dean B. Ellis. Maybe, you're even wiping a tear from your eye as the Indian mascot was retired in February 2008. All of the people who experienced any of these things built what Arkansas State University to what it is today. This book has captured the memories of the past year to add to the rich history of the past 100 years, and there are many faces that have made these memories possible. "A picture is worth a thousand words." And, this 2009 yearbook is worth even more to anyone who feels that ASU is truly their home.

[ASU Fight Song]

On, On, On to Victory
Brave team, We're second to none
Let's make this game history along with the others we've won.

Fight, Fight, Fight! with all your might so that the world may see that
RED W-O-L-V-E-S means Victory!

Without your support and assistance this book could not have been completed with such high quality. Your dedication to Arkansas State University and the WolfTracks yearbook was greatly appreciated.

One hundred years ago, Arkansas State University was established as an institution of higher education in Northeast Arkansas. While individuals had high hopes for the University, they could not have imagined the success and growth the campus would experience over the last century. Growing from an enrollment of 189 students in 1910, the University had 11,490 students enrolled during the 2008 Fall Semester at ASU-J. Arkansas State University has grown into a large system with locations in Beebe, Mountain Home, Newport, Heber Springs, Marked Tree, and Searcy. In 2008, the entire ASU system had approximately 19,000 students enrolled in classes across the region. In addition to our enrollment growth, Arkansas State University continues to produce quality gradates enhancing the local, state, regional and global communities. Our commitment to a global education enriches the student experience and foster a sense of community obligation. As we celebrate the 100 year anniversary of Arkansas State University, faculty, staff and students have the opportunity to look back on past accomplishment and look forward to another one hundred years of successful teaching, research and service. # Student Centennial Project

In 1959, in honor of the 50th anniversary of ASTATE, the Student Government Association designed and purchased an Indian mascot statue. That statue named Clyde resided in Wilson Hall, the Reng Center, and finally the Student Union. Last year the ASTATE mascot was changed from Indians to Red Wolves. Now in 2009, in honor of the 100th anniversary of our University, the Student Government Association and Student Activities Board have purchased two Red Wolves statues. Ryan Beaird, Quan Poole, Anna Treadway, and Bryan Bristol, student leaders of the two groups, are shown here with the statues shortly after they arrived on campus. The Red Wolves were later placed on the lower level of the Student Union and an unveiling ceremony took place in spring of 2009.
